President's Message

I hope all had a safe and enjoyable holiday. I attended a few large and small shows so far this year, and attendance has been pretty good. The FUN show in Florida was very well attended with large crowds and much activity. Small shows were active. I'm just back from the first Grapevine show in Dallas, Texas with a good crowd, yet most attendees were walking and talking, not buying. I hope this does not become a trend.

Volunteers, VNA officers and board members are working on the next VNA Convention/Show scheduled for late September 2024, at a new location at the Richmond Raceway in Henrico County, Virginia, a suburb of Richmond. This change in the venue is needed due to availability issues with the Fredericksburg venue. Days of the week and times are different from last year, to make the show more amenable to dealers and the public. Host clubs are the Richmond Coin Club, Monticello Coin Club, and the Virginia Peninsula Coin Club in the hope of having plenty of volunteers to handle the Convention.

The VNA seeks volunteers to take over as Convention Volunteer Director and to prepare the Memorial Table, recently relinquished by Moore Goldman. Anyone interested can get in touch with me. I hope we will have more than enough volunteers to step up and help with the show.

We all need to be cognizant of our surroundings when doing shows, as just one moment of inattention and items or collections can disappear. We need to keep a look out for ourselves and others. Security at most shows is good but not all encompassing, so we need to stay observant, and call security, if necessary.

The next VNA Board meeting will be at the Richmond Coin Club Show at the ACCA Temple on Bellevue Avenue in Richmond on May 11, 2024 at 0730. All VNA members are welcome.

I was saddened to learn of the passing of Malcolm Gutterman, a longtime member of the Tidewater Coin Club and longtime Bourse chairman of the twice annual show of that club. I met him at my first Tidewater show about 20 years ago and he always had a great smile when he saw me. I will sorely miss his smile and greetings.

I hope all stay safe and well and hope to see many of you at future shows and club meetings. Thanks.

Parry Bragg - VNA President

Editor's Corner

Robbery! – Be on the lookout for coins stolen from the Annandale Coin Show in December 2023. A list of these stolen coins is available on the VNA website at vnaonline.org. Many were PCGS or NGC slabbed, high grade, Imperial Russian coins from 5 Kopeks to 5 Rubles and fully identifiable by looking at their images at PCGS and NGC. Many US and foreign gold coins were also taken. Talk with Parry Bragg by phone at 804 652-9183 if you see any of these stolen coins.

SCAM! – Beware, several VNA Officers emails have been hijacked and spoofing scammers are sending out requests for gifts cards and Zelle payments. No VNA officer will ever email you asking for money. Please be careful and check, not just the name, but the return email, to verify that the sender's email matches with those listed for VNA officers in this newsletter.

Search VNA Archives online – The Newman Numismatic Portal archives back issues of The Virginia Numismatist that are fully word searchable. Financial Fredericksburg in the 19th Century

By Neil Hening

Fredericksburg, on the Rappahannock River is one of four ‘fall line’ towns in Virginia where the piedmont is separated from the coastal plain. Others are Alexandria on the Potomac, Richmond on the James, and Petersburg on the Appomattox. Fall line towns are located where river topography changes quickly in elevation, no longer permitting boat navigation without having to portage around waterfalls. This limitation makes Fredericksburg a logical location for east-meets-west trading and commerce. Fredericksburg also lies just below the confluence of another west-to-east flowing river, the Rapidan River, which flows into the Rappahannock about ten miles northwest of Fredericksburg.

Bank of Virginia (Lynchburg Branch) Two Dollars – January 2, 1862

Fredericksburg’s first bank began when the state-chartered, Bank of Virginia in Richmond opened a branch in Fredericksburg in 1804. The charter authorized Fredericksburg as one of the first towns to have a branch. Many businessmen complained about the monopoly of the Bank of Virginia, and the state chartered the Farmers Bank of Virginia in 1812, with a branch in Fredericksburg. We are fortunate that two ‘minute books’ for the Farmers Bank of Virginia survive for the main bank in Richmond. They are dated 1820 - 1827 and 1841 - 1853 respectively. Various branches of the bank are cited in these minutes. Germain to Fredericksburg, the minutes record that worn out and unusable banknotes were returned to Richmond for replacement and destruction. In 1824, the minutes reflect the destruction of $129,000 face value of banknotes ranging from $5 to $100 denominations, amounting to 3,236 banknotes. Two additional financial institutions opened in Fredericksburg and issued banknotes before failing.

Farmers Bank of Virginia One Dollar – December 16th, 1861

Minutes survive from the Bank of Commerce, chartered on March 29, 1851, whose board of directors held their first meeting on December 15, 1853. In 1861 notes from this bank received some notoriety as the local newspaper advised that counterfeit $10 bills were being circulated in Baltimore. The public was warned to be wary of a woman who passed the notes frequently changing her attire to avoid detection. This bank did not survive the Civil War and closed in 1865.

Bank of Commerce (Fredericksburg) Five Dollars – June 15, 1855

The second was the Fredericksburg Savings Institution whose minutes survive, and the board of directors held their first meeting on May 19, 1839. This institution was eventually driven out of business in 1844 due to competition with the Farmers Bank of Virginia.

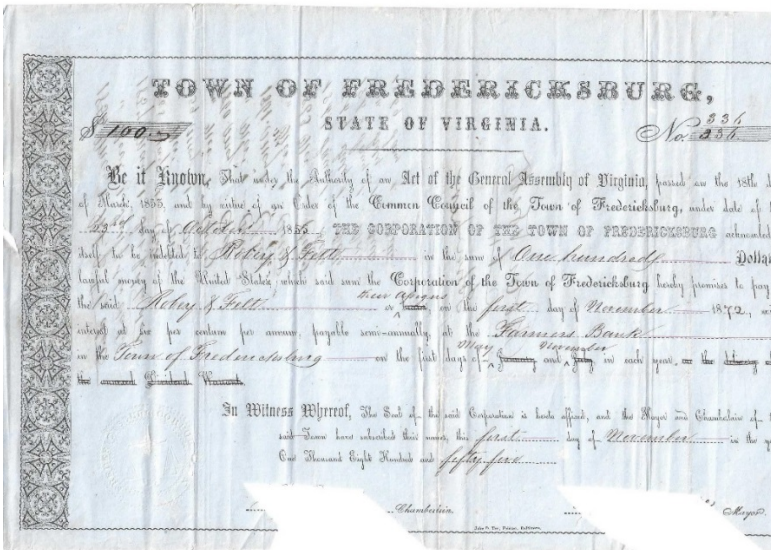

Banks were not the only financial organizations to emit paper currency. Before the war, six different Fredericksburg merchants issued banking ‘scrips’ as well as the Fredericksburg and Valley Plank Road Company. Although not chartered as banks, their notes served the same purpose in trade but offered no assurances of any kind. The issuers relied on good faith and their reputation in the community for their local acceptance.

Hart, Hayes & Co., Produce and Commission Merchants Twenty-Five Cents – September 2, 1861

The Common Council of Fredericksburg authorized municipal bonds up to the amount of $4,250, in sums not less than $100 each in 1855. Interestingly these bonds were sold for the town to raise funds to purchase 850 shares of stock in the Fredericksburg - Gordonsville Railroad.

Town of Fredericksburg $100 Municipal Bond – October 23, 1855

On April 20, 1861, the Common Council of the “Town,” officially the Corporation of Fredericksburg authorized issuance of “small bills” to meet engagements of the corporation at the outset of the Civil War. Banknotes were issued in denominations of fifty cents, one dollar, and two dollars the following month, that circulated well and were worn out after just six months heavy use. These were payable in Virginia Bank Notes by the Chamberlain to the bearer on presentation of due bills to the amount of five dollars.

Corporation of Fredericksburg Two Dollars – November 1, 1861

By September 1861, the town council authorized an additional $10,000 in notes. When the town was destroyed by war in 1862 many notes in the bank and courthouse were ‘carted off’ by soldiers so that many survive today.

Corporation of Fredericksburg Fifty Cents – September 18, 1861

During the Civil War, the County of Spotsylvania, which borders Fredericksburg, issued municipal bonds. On March 7, 1864, the Spotsylvania County Court sought the sum of $10,000 to be funded by the issuance of bonds. Unfortunately, none of these bonds have survived, but records of sales exist that show fifteen bonds were sold to individuals in varying amounts ranging from $100 to $3,000. Another medium of exchange were Confederate postage stamps. At the outbreak of the Civil War, small change quickly became scarce. The Confederate States of America Post Office Department was slow in getting stamps to the local post offices. Local postmasters had provisional stamps printed for use. The local postmaster in Fredericksburg had postal stamps printed in denominations of 5 cents and 10 cents. By the end of the Civil War most Fredericksburg financial institutions had failed. The Fredericksburg branch of the Farmers Bank of Virginia did survive and reorganize into the National Bank of Fredericksburg (Charter Number 1582) in 1865, whose bank building that dates from 1820, still stands today. Oddly enough interest on bonds for the Town of Fredericksburg continued to be honored after the end of the war. Endorsements of the back of the bonds show interest payments made into the late 1860s.
